Appellate court allows restraining order to continue

John Richmeier
Leavenworth Times

Judges with the Kansas Court of Appeals are allowing a temporary restraining order against CoreCivic to remain in effect while they consider an appeal of the order. The temporary restraining order prevents CoreCivic from operating the company’s Leavenworth facility as a detention center without first obtaining a special use permit from the city. The temporary restraining order was granted by Leavenworth County District Court John Bryant in a lawsuit filed by the city of Leavenworth against CoreCivic. Attorneys for CoreCivic have appealed Bryant’s order to the Kansas Court of Appeals. The lawyers for CoreCivic asked the appellate court to suspend or stay the enforcement of the temporary restraining order during the appeal. Attorneys for the city filed a response in opposition of the request. Court of Appeals Presiding Judge Lori Bolton Fleming issues a two-sentence order on Thursday denying CoreCivic’s motion to suspend or stay enforcement of the temporary restraining order. However, CoreCivic’s appeal of the temporary restraining order is still pending. And Fleming issued a separate order Thursday indicating the schedule for submitting briefs in the appellate case will be expedited. “Given the nature of this appeal, the briefing schedule will be expedited,” Fleming wrote in her order. “In the absence of a showing of exceptional circumstances, no extensions of time for filing briefs will be granted. The court will not consider heavy workload, alone, an exceptional circumstance.” CoreCivic Continued on A3

Square dancing club sashays into Leavenworth

Special to the Times

The Heartland Squares held its first locally hosted square dance in Leavenworth Saturday at the Riverfront Community Center. Club President Roberta Beier hosted the dance. About 50-60 dancers, including those from neighboring cities such as Lawrence, Shawnee and Overland Park, attended the event. Heartland Squares is based in Shawnee but Beier is a Leavenworth resident. Beier said she and her husband took up square dancing in 2018 as a way of exercising and socializing. “People are looking for ways to exercise,” Beier said. “But square dance is one of the best ways to prevent dementia. So, older people square dance because they get exercise and a chance to socialize. It’s alcohol-free and it’s mentally stimulating. So, we keep dancing because it’s good for us.” Beier said there are other reasons for square dancing that are just as important. “It took me about a year to realize that dancing is not the most important part,” Beier said. “The most important part is this community of people. They’re fabulous.” Beier said that getting started in the activity meant starting from scratch. “We’d never square danced before, and we took lessons with Heartland Squares,” Beier said. “They taught us how to square dance, and we’ve been hooked ever since. It’s great. The community of people, it’s amazing.”

Square dancing involves four couples, eight people, who are dancing in a square formation. According to the website Square Dance History, square dancing has been a part of American social life for centuries. Some historians date square dancing back to 17th century England but it also has origins from folk dancing in various countries. Some sources simply describe square dancing as a fusion of generations of “social folk dancing.”

Leavenworth school board approves budget

John Richmeier
Leavenworth Times

Leavenworth Board of Education members have approved a 2025-2026 budget. Board members voted Monday to approve a budget that exceeds what is referred to as the school district’s revenue neutral rate. But the approved tax rate is less than what had been proposed as part of a public notice of Monday’s budget hearing. By exceeding the revenue neutral rate, the school district will receive more money in property tax revenue for the 2025-2026 school year than the previous year. Local tax entities use what are referred to as mills for levying property taxes. A notice for Monday’s budget hearing indicated school board members were considering a total tax levy of 57.362 mills for the 2025-2026 budget. This would have increased the school district’s local property tax revenue by about $1.8 million compared to the previous year. However, board members voted Monday to approve a budget with a total mill levy of 54.964 mills. This will increase the school district’s property tax revenue by about $1.06 million, according to information previously released by the school district. The budget was approved by a 4-3 vote. Board members Vanessa Reid, Jessica Wilson and Alisa Murphy voted against the motion. The revenue neutral rate for the district was 51.122 mills. Superintendent Kellen Adams acknowledged that the budget impacts every taxpayer in the school district. “It certainly comes at a time in which there is a number of different challenges that every family is facing in the way of inflation, and we’re certainly sensitive to that,” he said. Board members actually had two

Kids take the stage in downtown musical

“The Lightning Thief” opens Thursday at the Performing Arts Center, 500 Delaware St. The show runs through Sunday. Evening performances are at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday is a 2 p.m. matinee. The musical is an adaptation by Joe Tracz based on the Rick Riordan novel “The Lightning Thief.” The show features 20 songs by Rob Rokicki. The story revolves around a troubled boy, Percy Jackson. He magically ends up at a camp for half-bloods where he finds out he is the son of Poseidon, a great Greek god. Percy must go on a quest with his friends to prevent a war among the gods. Lacey Connell directs the production. Luke Pyron plays the lead, Percy Jackson. “As a lover of musicals, I genuinely think ‘Lightning Thief’ is in my top five,” Connell said. “This is the second time I’ve done this show with a kids cast. I just did it in December with a different group of kiddos. So, it’s still very fresh for me. Every single one of the kids has a moment or a feature.”

The 29-member cast features local talent but was a draw for kids from other surrounding areas to participate. “It’s a wide array,” Connell said. “We have kids commuting from Gladstone and from the Mill Valley area. And we’ve got some new kiddos that just moved to Fort Leavenworth. Then we’ve got kids I’ve been doing shows with since I moved to the area in 2021. It’s good for the kids in Leavenworth

Rodney Rivard, 86, passed away peacefully on July 28, 2025. Born in Longmeadow, Mass., to LeRoy and Alma Rivard, Rodney lived a life rich in love and purpose, surrounded by friends wherever he called home. He attended Assumption College in Worcester, Mass., where he met the love of his life, Gladys Healy. They married March 24, 1962, shortly after Rodney graduated from Georgetown Dental School. Rodney and Gladys had many homes during his 21 years with the U.S. Air Force and they, along with their three children embraced them all. In 1984 Rodney opened dental practice in Leavenworth, Kan., where he became a vibrant and respected member of the community. A lifelong music lover, he sang barbershop with Cody Choraliers and performed with Possum Holler Four quartet. A proud member and past president of the Rotary Club, Rodney led numerous fundraising efforts for the local community. Rodney believed in living a life filled with passions. An enthusiastic gardener, many a family meal featured the bounty of his harvest. A devoted sports fan, his passing leaves one less KC Chiefs fan. Rodney was passionate about traveling with his family giving them a life filled with exciting destinations exploring the history of the United States and places abroad. Rodney believed anything could be learned by picking up a book and was never without a current read. He embraced the outdoors with everything from scuba diving the Great Barrier Reef to salmon fishing in Alaska to hunting in Nebraska, always with friends. Preceded in death by his wife of 59 years, Gladys, he is survived by three children, Nancy, Janet (Allan) and Tom (Amy), along with nine grandchildren and four great-grandchildren with two more on the way. Organization seeks volunteers to clean cemetery

Staff report

the Department of Veterans Affairs National Cemetery Administration, volunteers will help honor fallen service members by cleaning headstones and beautifying the grounds at nearly 70 national cemeteries across the country. The public is being invited to volunteer from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Thursday at the Leavenworth National Cemetery, 150 Muncie Road. People can visit www.carrytheload.org/patriot-day-national-day-of-service/ for more information and to register.

Defendant sentenced for fleeing from officer

Staff report

A Tonganoxie man has been sentenced to more than one year in prison for fleeing from law enforcement, according to a news release from the County Attorney's Office. Gary L. Dixon, 43, was sentenced Friday in Leavenworth County District Court to one year and two months in prison for fleeing or attempting to elude a law enforcement officer. The charge stemmed from a Sept. 30, 2023, pursuit.

A sheriff's deputy spotted a motorcycle without a license plate traveling south on 158th Street near Linwood Road. The deputy activated emergency lights and sirens, but the operator of the motorcycle continued to travel for about two miles at speeds between 50 and 55 mph before stopping near 161st Street, according to the news release. Dixon was also sentenced Friday to time in the Leavenworth County Jail for driving with a suspended license, having no proof of insurance, transporting liquor in an open container and driving with an expired tag or no registration. These sentences will be served concurrently with the prison sentence. Dixon was convicted of the charges July 14. "Driving is a privilege, not a right," County Attorney Todd Thompson said in a news release. "Fleeing from law enforcement officers endangers everyone on the road – even on rural roads. This case shows that such reckless behavior has real consequences and can lead to a prison sentence."

Defendant pleads to drug charges

Staff report

A Leavenworth woman has pleaded to felony drug charges. Rhaune L. Taylor, 25, pleaded no contest to unlawful distribution of fentanyl and guilty to possession of amphetamine.

The charges stemmed from a March 18, 2024, incident at Fourth and Cheyenne streets in which Taylor was found asleep behind the wheel of a parked car that had its engine running, according to a news release from the County

Attorney's Office.

During a search of the vehicle and Taylor's purse, police found numerous pills. "Drug offenses like this are serious because they not only harm the individual but also threaten the safety and well-being of our community," County Attorney Todd Thompson said in a news release. "This conviction demonstrates our commitment to holding offenders accountable and working to keep dangerous substances off our streets."

budget hearings Monday. Both were required by state law.

The first one was a public hearing on exceeding the revenue neutral rate. Two people from the audience addressed the board during this hearing. One audience member questioned the level of increases proposed for some funds within the budget. The other audience member who spoke encouraged board members to exceed the revenue neutral rate. At the conclusion of this hearing, board members approved a resolution to exceed the revenue neutral rate. This resolution was approved by a 5-2 vote. Reid and Murphy voted against the resolution. Board members then had a public hearing on the budget in general. No one from the audience addressed board members during this hearing. Board President Karen Overbey asked if there was a motion to approve the budget presented by the administration with the mill levy of 57.362 mills. She said this would have maximized revenue in all funds. "This is the budget as published," Overbey said. No one made a motion to approve this budget. Overbey then asked if there was a motion to approve a second budget option with a mill levy of 54.964 mills. She said this one splits the difference between the first option and a revenue neutral budget. Board Vice President Judi Price made a motion to approve this budget option. The motion, which was successful, was seconded by Overbey. Also Monday, board members voted to appoint Beth Mattox, chief financial officer for the school system, to serve as the district's freedom of information officer. Jake Potter, the district's former chief communications officer, previously served in this role, but he left the school system last month to take a job with the Lawrence public schools. Adams had proposed taking on the duty himself. But board members appointed Mattox to serve in that role. Overbey suggested board members can revisit the matter in the future.

Today’s American square dancing involves making different sets of dance moves or choreography that are dictated (called out) by a “caller.” Mike Hogan, from Omaha, was the caller at Saturday’s event and explained how square dancing works.

“I’m the guy that stands up on the stage and tells them what to do,” he said. “Our job is to entertain. I mix them together with music and song and a little bit of humor, hopefully. You put all that together and it’s a two-and-a-half-hour dance that they come and have fun and socialize and just have a blast. My goal is that I’ve entertained them enough so that the next time I’m in their area, they go, ‘yeah, I’m going to go dance to that guy again.’”

Beier said there are square dance clubs all over the world and many easy to find in the local area. To get started, beginners just need to take lessons.

“You have to take a series of lessons,” Beier said. “It’s about 65 calls that you learn and once you’ve learned those 65 calls, you can square dance anywhere in the world. Square dance calls are always called in English – in Japan, Germany and Thailand, everywhere around the world.”

Saturday was the first time the Heartland Squares has hosted a dance in Leavenworth.

“It puts a little fun in your life to try dancing,” Beier said. “For me, it’s grown into something where my entire circle of friends is now square dancers. I know 100 people I didn’t know five years ago. And we travel with them, we go out to dinner with them, we go bowling with them. So, it’s a way to meet people in real life.”

In recent years, square dancing has evolved in other ways.

“The music is amazing,” Beier added. “People think the music is all country music but it’s actually all popular music. So, a lot of people square dance because they like the music.”

Who are the people who take up square dancing? People of all different persuasions but many who are looking for a fun activity.

“I asked a friend who is just starting lessons with us, why they chose to take up square dancing,” Beier said. “And she said, ‘We were looking for something to do together that neither one of us already knew how to do – something new that we could learn together.’ They needed that date night, a time with their spouse.”

Square dancing offers a relief from everyday life for many people.

“When you’re square dancing, you can’t think of anything else because you have to pay attention to the caller. So, for two and a half hours, you’re just away from everything,” Beier said.

CoreCivic

The Tennessee-based CoreCivic operates private detention centers. The company previously housed detainees for the U.S. Marshals Service at its Leavenworth facility.

The facility became vacant at the end of 2021 after the company’s contract with the Marshals Service was not renewed.

CoreCivic now has a contract to house detainees for U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement at the Leavenworth facility.

City officials argue CoreCivic needs a special use permit because the facility has not been used as a detention center for more than one year and lost its previous grandfathered status under the city’s development regulations.

CoreCivic officials argue the Leavenworth facility maintains the grandfathered status that enables it to operate without the permit from the city. Company officials say the Leavenworth facility has never closed even though it has gone through a vacancy period.

The city filed a lawsuit in Leavenworth County District Court to prevent the company from housing detainees without a special use permit.

Much of the lawsuit in Leavenworth

County District Court is on hold as the temporary restraining order is being appealed.

However, Bryant did issue an order Monday in the Leavenworth County case. The judge dismissed Misty Mackey as a defendant in the lawsuit.

Mackey is the warden of the local CoreCivic facility.

The city had named Mackey as a defendant in the lawsuit. Attorneys for CoreCivic, who are also representing Mackey, asked that she be dismissed from the case.

In his order, Bryant questioned whether “Mackey is a necessary party to this action.”

“It would seem that under no theory of the case or under any facts alleged, can Defendant Mackey operate the facility outside of the authority granted by Defendant CoreCivic,” Bryant wrote in his order. “It is not Defendant Mackey’s plan to operate the Property for a jail or prison, it is Defendant CoreCivic’s plan to do so. There are no facts set forth with specific regard to Defendant Mackey to illustrate how she will aid and abet Defendant CoreCivic or how Defendant Mackey plans to aid and abet Defendant CoreCivic in the future.”

A separate lawsuit has been filed by CoreCivic against the city in U.S. District Court. That federal lawsuit argues that the city is violating the Supremacy Clause of the U.S. Constitution.

Taylor Swift’s fortitude is something to admire

I want to write about someone who for me is a brand new subject, the entertainer Taylor Swift. I must admit that I know nothing about her music. I would not recognize it because it’s not something I follow. To me, it would sound and look like more pop art. She gets my attention for other reasons.

Walt Mack

As far as I can tell, she is the smartest entertainer in the world today. She organizes, demands and commands more than any artist on any stage, cultural or pop. She outshines any other single performer in the world with what she has done and what she has earned.

Now in her mid-30s, Taylor consults her parents’ opinions and direction in the business aspects of what she does. She has accepted their help with spectacular results. Indeed, a lot of her success is very much a family affair. This remains true even after her parents’ divorce.

Yet her art is her own.

Here is a woman who as a youth invented a genre: teenage country music. And she did this on her own initiative. I recall walking into a drug store 15 or so years ago and encountering a life-size figure of Taylor over a display of ... well, I don’t remember what it was. That was my introduction to her. I’ve forgotten the product but not the star.

She has lent help to issues that I strongly oppose. She has taken abuse from folks who have supported those issues because they felt she did not back them strongly enough. It has had no effect on her or on her popularity. She is very much her own person. She dismisses the critics by forging ahead her way. This fortitude is something to admire even where I disagree with her.

The fans in their mid-30s who grew up with her behave like today’s younger set, often alongside their daughters. She has struck a chord with them and seems to refine it with every new effort. She has done things which have earned my admiration. I want to address one of these.

Taylor has used her billionaire’s wealth to rescue historical homes from being trashed and the property broken up by developers.

She saved the Hollywood mansion and estate of legendary film producer Samuel Goldwyn from demolition. They were designed and built for his new wife in 1934, the year of my birth. Maybe I’m just being sentimental about the year, but it has been recognized as a historical location now faithfully restored.

She bought a well-kept coastal home on a point of land on the Rhode Island coast. Private property,

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Election has strong list of candidates

To the editor:

I am writing this letter to the editor to talk about the upcoming City Commission race and the strong field of candidates. Our community is fortunate to have so many outstanding people willing to serve.

Mr. Clay, Mr. Redmon and Mr. Shopfner are all veterans who built admirable careers and chose to call Leavenworth home. They deserve our respect and gratitude for their service. Mr. Maxwell’s family has deep roots here, and he is a hardworking, blue-collar voice with valuable knowledge of our infrastructure. Ms. Hollister is young, smart and passionate about our community’s future.

This race has been anything but contentious. There has been no back-biting, no social media blow-ups, only honest discussion about the issues. These individuals are people I respect and admire, and the city of Leavenworth is fortunate to have such strong candidates for City Commission.

I would like to take a moment to highlight what I bring to the table as a candidate for the Leavenworth City Commission. I have personally called Leavenworth home since 1985. I graduated from Leavenworth High School and went on to work at Lansing Correctional Facility for a year, then served several years with the Leavenworth County Sheriff’s Office. In 2001, while still with the Sheriff’s Office, I started my first IT company out of my garage. Since then, I have built several companies and sold a few. I have worked in the corporate world, and I have also worked with nonprofits. This wide range of experience has given me a broad perspective to draw from.

I have been married to my wife for 28 years, and together we have three children and soon-to-be four grandchildren. I am a moderate conservative who understands the need and value of compromise. I believe success comes from treating everyone with respect, even when I disagree.

I am pro-business because I believe we cannot tax our way to prosperity, nor can we cut our way there. We must run an efficient government, and we must grow our city and expand the tax base. Most importantly, we need to make sure everyone understands that Leavenworth is open for business. Leavenworth is the first city in Kansas, and I believe it should serve as a beacon of light for our state.

I am also pro—first responder. These men and women deserve to be respected, treated well and paid fairly. While we may not always match the salaries of surrounding areas, we must continue to prioritize taking care of those who run toward danger so the rest of us do not have to.

I am committed to growth — growth in opportunity, in business and in the quality of life for all who call Leavenworth home.

- Joe Wilson is a candidate for the Leavenworth City Commission.

The facts about selling lamb and agriculture

Jennifer and I sell lamb at the farmers market in Manhattan. Yes, it is a great way for us to sell our lamb, but what I enjoy the most is interacting with the consumers who buy our lamb. I take considerable pride in the meat we produce and in sharing it with the end user.

As good as that all is, this is also a chance for me to advocate for agriculture and, in some small way, to help dispel some of the myths about how we produce food. It’s not always easy, and I am not always successful, but it is important to try and get the truth out.

A couple of weeks ago a gentleman stopped at our booth and expressed interest in purchasing lamb, but first he had a question. He asked if we used pesticides on our farm. I told him we do, and they are a valuable tool in our toolbox.

Glenn Brunkow

He then told me he was not interested in buying any meat because it would have pesticide on it. I explained we follow all safety precautions including re-entry and grazing exclusion times. That was not good enough for him, and I could not convince him our meat was free of pesticide residue no matter what evidence I presented to him.

In the end I chalked my interaction up to the old adage of “you can’t win them all.” However, that does not mean you should not try. In the end we had a very civil discussion, but he would not be swayed by the evidence. Thankfully, there are many other customers who do believe me.

I also had a customer ask me if my meat was free of hormones and antibiotics. I told them, first, that there are no added hormones I could give sheep so that is not a concern. Moreover, I told them that we are in regular contact with our veterinarian and follow the label guidelines on the antibiotics we do give our lambs.

I told the customer we use as few antibiotics as possible, but when my sheep are sick, I want to treat them with the best possible medicine. The health and wellbeing of our sheep is one of the top concerns on our farm. I also said that we are very conscious of proper use of antibiotics because we want them to remain effective for our sheep as well as ourselves.

In this instance I was successful and made the sale.

As farmers and ranchers, we need to make sure we take our time and explain to consumers what we do and why we do it. Farmers and ranchers are among the most trusted professionals, and we need to make sure we use this trust to dispel bad information that consumers are constantly bombarded with.

We may not always be successful but that does not mean we should not keep trying to tell our story every chance we get. We’re not going to win every conversation, but I believe we can win most of them. Each consumer we do educate is one more friend of agriculture — and we need every friend we can get.

Glenn Brunkow is a Pottawatomie County farmer and rancher.

the former owner had permitted public access to the beach. But it was eroding. Taylor arranged for multiple loads of huge rock brought in to fortify against it. This led to a legal suit by her neighbors who wanted to keep the beach open. The court ruled in favor of arresting the erosion. Taylor and her engagement to Travis Kelce are well-known to the world. They have looked at securing property in Ohio near his hometown. The place that has attracted them seems ideal, secluded yet with every amenity including a recording studio. It won’t be cheap. Completed as the recent epidemic began, its wealthy owner died of COVID-19 just weeks after moving in. Sixty years ago, I knew the area well. Small and picturesque, my boss at the time lived in Chagrin Falls which will be their closest shopping. I wish them the best. And I hope she gets pregnant at once after they wed. Her songs may then catch my interest. I should confess that I’ve a Taylor in my family. With a doctorate in historical geography, my Taylor is a son. Walt Mack is a life-long historian and lives in Leavenworth.

NEWS & ANNOUNCEMENTS

FRIENDLY VISITOR PROGRAM: The Council on Aging is launching a new program on September 1. The Friendly Visitor Program pairs volunteers with homebound seniors to provide social connection. Through regular home visits and /or phone calls volunteers help reduce loneliness and social isolation felt by many seniors in our community. Friendships develop, relationships grow and seniors remain engaged. This valuable social connection can reduce cognitive decline, lessen anxiety and improve the overall quality of life for this homebound population.

Program Requirements
Participants in the Friendly Visitor Program must reside in Leavenworth County and be age 60+ or disabled. An intake interview will be conducted with the Friendly Visitor Coordinator to determine eligibility. Each participant must provide emergency contact information to be used only by the Friendly Visitor Coordinator if necessary.
Both volunteers and participants must sign a Code of Conduct document to be kept on file at the Leavenworth County Council on Aging (COA). The Friendly Visitor Coordinator will try to match people with similar interests. When a volunteer is paired with a participant, specific background information will be provided. The Friendly Visitor Coordinator will make the introduction and be present for the initial visit. There will be follow up conversations with both the volunteer and participant to confirm the match is a success or to address any concerns.
If you are interested in being a volunteer for this program, please reach out to program coordinator, Amybeth Richardson. Amybeth can be reached at 913-684-0780 or arichardson@leavenworthcounty.gov.

OPEN ENROLLMENT: Medicare Open Enrollment is just around the corner. October 15 to December 7 is when all people with Medicare can change their Medicare health plans and prescription drug coverage for the following year to better meet their needs. People in a Medicare health or prescription drug plan should always review the materials their plans send them, like the “Evidence of Coverage” (EOC) and “Annual Notice of Change” (ANOC). If their plans are changing, they should make sure their plans will still meet their needs for the following year. If they’re satisfied that their current plans will meet their needs for next year and it’s still being offered, they don’t need to do anything.
You can explore Medicare coverage options by:
Going to www.medicare.gov

NUTRITION PROGRAM

The Nutrition Department’s goal is to provide a hot, balanced and nutritious meal to older adults, age 60 and older, living in Leavenworth County. The Meals on Wheels program is dedicated to meeting nutritional needs, combating social isolation and ensuring safety. Meals on Wheels helps individuals remain independent and at home.

DINING CENTERS: Hot, nutritious meals are served daily at local dining center sites to qualifying participants who are 60 years and older. Dine in or grab-and-go meals are served daily, Monday-Friday, at mid-morning at each site, with the exception of federal holidays. Join us for a meal, stay for the fun – bingo, cards, games and socializing! Four locations are available throughout Leavenworth County:

- Bethel AME Church – 411 Kiowa Street, Leavenworth
- Trinity Lutheran Church – 2101 10th Avenue, Leavenworth
- Basehor United Methodist Church - 18660 158th Street, Basehor
- West Haven Baptist Church – 1000 West Street, Tonganoxie

Reservations are taken at the dining centers one week in advance.

HOME-DELIVERED MEALS: Hot, nutritious meals are delivered daily to the homes of qualifying participants who are 60 years and older. Enjoy daily contact with a member of the Council on Aging staff or one of our many Meals on Wheels volunteers. Meals are delivered daily, Monday – Friday, from 10:00am-12:30pm.

A $3.00 per meal donation is appreciated. Meals can be paid for in increments that work for the recipient. Cash, check, and PayPal accepted. For more information about our Nutrition program, call 913-684-0777.

PET SERVICES

PETS AND LOVING SENIORS (PALS): PALS is a program designed for seniors, age 60 and older, to help ease the burden of buying food for their pets. Through the generous donations of pet food and funds from community members and businesses, we are able to assist in providing meals and necessary supplies to pets. If you are interested in contributing to this program, look for our PALS donation boxes located at supporting retail stores in Leavenworth, Lansing, and throughout the county. You can also call to make an appointment to come by or mail in a donation to our office.

PET2VET: This program helps seniors unable to drive or without transportation get their pet to and from veterinary and grooming appointments.

For more information about our pet programs and qualifications, contact Cara Campbell at 913-364-5754.

Fargo eliminates Monarchs from playoffs

Staff report

The Kansas City Monarchs 2025 season was cut short in a tightly contested Game 3.

The Fargo-Moorhead RedHawks bounced the Monarchs 6-0 on Saturday night at Legends Field. The RedHawks advance to face the Sioux Falls Canaries in the West Division Championship Series.

RedHawks starting pitcher Tyler Jandron (1-0) put together a stellar performance. The left-hander dealt six scoreless innings and retired 14 consecutive batters.

Two Monarchs players capped off great regular seasons with big-time awards.

Brantley Bell and Robbie Glendinning have both been named to the American Association's Post-Season All-Star Team. Bell has been named the league's second baseman of the year and Glendinning is this year's AAPB utility player of the year.

The Monarchs (59-41) finished the regular season with the second-most wins in the league.

The Fargo-Moorhead RedHawks beat the Monarchs 6-0 on Saturday night. Kansas City Monarchs

Lifelong ‘loner’ struggles to make connections post-retirement

Eric’s Mailbox | Eric Thomas

Dear Eric: I retired a couple of years ago. I, like many people, I think, have realized that most of my friends and even acquaintances were work-related. My family doesn’t live close. I’ve always been a loner, so this doesn’t normally even bother me. I recently had a health issue come up where I needed a “responsible adult” to drive me home from surgery and I had a hard time coming up with someone.

Most of my interests are ones done alone and, when I looked into senior centers, the things they had were all craft stuff that I have no interest in learning. I’m a woman who has never really had much in common with other women and, at my age, have no interest in an actual relationship.

I had a couple of really bad experiences with organized religion in my youth and I’ve tried to find a new church over the years but find myself uncomfortable with the things I see and hear. I tried volunteer work, but like many towns, they are pretty much run by the churches and, after I kept politely turning down offers to come to their church, I found myself ignored or ostracized.

I know a lot of the problem is on me, but how do you make friends or at least another responsible adult when you are over 60?

— Loner but Not Alone

or activities that aren’t necessarily geared toward seniors. Perhaps you’ll find more in common with the local chess club or a sports league, for instance. Intergenerational friendship is one of life’s richest rewards and you may find it easier to connect with some of these organizations.

You might also consider getting a part-time job that you like and seeing if you jibe with your coworkers. If you don’t, you don’t have to keep the job. But connections can come from that as well.

Lastly, while it doesn’t necessarily address the “responsible adult” need right away, many people find more connection through online groups — based around shared interests, hobbies, advocacy, or projects — than they do in their local community. These connections can then trickle down locally — people might have nearby connections, or they could themselves be closer than you think.

Dear Eric: I am writing in response to the letter from the woman who had an Alzheimer’s diagnosis and felt isolated and lonely (“Unmatched Matchmaker”).

Your advice to her to reach out to support groups and to be more direct with her family and friends about her needs was excellent. As a board-certified health and wellness coach who focuses specifically on the needs of seniors and people of all ages living with chronic illness and disability, I wanted to offer some additional options that she and her family may want to be aware of.

First, many local elder services access points train and maintain a group of volunteer visitors for isolated elders in their community. Many city Commissions on Aging or similar also have programs like these.

Second, if the letter writer is even an occasional member of a worship community, there is probably a group within that community that organizes regular visits to people who need them. If they are not part of any faith tradition, the American Humanist Association also has a secular chaplaincy program which could be of benefit to her.

Third, something the letter writer and her family might want to consider engaging a geriatric care manager who could help them to identify supplementary services and connections in the local community that could go at least some way to alleviating her isolation. Geriatric care managers are generally people with medical and social services training (usually nurses and social workers) who have particular expertise in creating care plans that cover medical interventions and the creation of everyday life routines and supports for people with particular needs.

This is not an inexpensive option (services from local elder support access, charitable organizations, and worship communities should of course be free) but if the writer and her family are overwhelmed, it could be a very wise investment.

— Help Available

Dear Help Available: Thank you for this very thorough response. I believe it will help a lot of people. Navigating a loss of capacity or providing care and companionship for someone who is navigating an Alzheimer’s or similar diagnosis can be very isolating. This is a great reminder to those folks that they are not alone.

EXHIBIT E

SUMMARY OF THE CONTRACTUAL ASSURANCES BY THE DEVELOPER AND OF THE COMPREHENSIVE FEASIBILITY ANALYSIS

Contractual Assurances

The Governing Body expects to enter into a Development Agreement (the “Development Agreement”) with Circle H Land Development, LLC, a Nevada limited liability company, and/or Circle H Holdings, LLC (the “Developer”). The Development Agreement will include the project construction schedule, a description of projects to be constructed, financial obligations of the developer, and administrative support from the City. The Development Agreement will include contractual assurances, if any, the Governing Body has received from the Developer guaranteeing the financial feasibility of specific housing tax incentive projects in the proposed district.

Feasibility Study

The Developer and Spencer Fane LLP have conducted a study to determine whether the public benefits derived from the District will exceed the costs and that the income from the District, together with other sources of revenue provided by the developer, would be sufficient to pay for the public improvements to be undertaken in the District. The analysis estimates the property tax revenues that will be generated from the development of the District, less existing property taxes and certain unavailable property tax revenues to determine the revenue stream available to support the costs of the public infrastructure. The estimates indicate that the revenue realized from the project together with other sources of Developer funds would be adequate to pay the eligible costs.

Lansing Fire Department unveils new pumper truck

Connie Parish
Special to the Times

The Lansing Fire Department has a new pumper truck, which was on display near City Hall prior to the Sept. 4 council meeting. Fire Chief Joe Gates said he is happy about the new truck, and said this added to the department's inventory since it lost two trucks in the split when Fire District No. 1 was dissolved. The city of Lansing and Delaware Township, which contracts with the city, provide protection to their areas.

High Prairie Township, previously in the district, opted to provide its own service. When it existed, the fire district had four pumper trucks, one 2017, one 2014, one 2008 and one 2005. High Prairie wanted the 2014 truck and one other one. Gates described the new truck as an "all around truck" that will go to structure fires, wrecks and other emergencies. It has a 1,000-gallon tank and a 1,500-gallon a minute pump. Since it was designed to the fire department's specifications, Gates said it took about 10 months from the day it was ordered to the day it was received. Lansing City Council members approved its purchase at an October 2024 meeting. The proposal for the pumper listed the price at $851,501 if it was paid upon delivery. If it was prepaid, the city would receive a discount of $21,874, lowering the price to $829,627, and the Council opted for that plan. Not only Gates was excited about the new pumper, so were a number of his crew who came to City Hall and talked to interested Council members prior to the meeting and also posed for a photo. Council members also acted on another proposal to benefit the fire department. The department had requested a slide-in unit for the department's 2017 Chevy one-ton pickup. It will be used to fight brush fires in the response area. The purchase gives the department a second brush truck. The bid accepted was from Feld Fire for $19,949. Since it's a slide-in unit, Gates pointed out it could slide into a new truck when necessary.

In other business
The Lansing City Council:
• Presided over the promotion of three police officers. Sgt. Richard DeMateo was promoted to lieutenant, and officers Dustin Grace and Lee Adkisson were promoted to sergeant.
• Presented a proclamation to the Leavenworth County Humane Society in recognition of its accomplishments.
• Set a public hearing date of Nov. 6 for the potential creation of a Community Improvement District (CID) for 15.7 acres in Lansing's Towne Centre. This would involve the city levying a 1% CID sales tax.
