Bring your family to hear great music and eat some delicious BBQ!

Bugs, BBQ and more this weekend

The highly-anticipated "Smokin' in the Pines" Bugs and BBQ Festival is set to sizzle this Friday and Saturday, Sept. 20-21, bringing mouth-watering barbecue, live music, a VW Bug Show and family-friendly fun to Perry.

This year's festival will be the biggest yet, with more than 100 vendors -- including 10 food trucks and approximately 90 booths selling arts, crafts, customized hand-made or homemade goods.

Hosted at Forest Capital Park, the Smokin' in the Pines BBQ Festival will feature 34 of the best BBQ pitmasters from across the region, showcasing their skills and competing for top honors in several categories, including ribs, brisket, pulled pork and chicken.

In addition to the BBQ competition, the festival will feature a red-hot musical lineup with live performances from regional bands and artists, a colorful Volkswagen Bug Show showcasing vintage VW Bugs, buses, Karmen Ghias and more, as well as a Kids' Fun Zone with games, face painting and other activities.

The festival will feature 34 of the best BBQ pitmasters from across the region, showcasing their skills and competing for top honors in several categories, including ribs, brisket, pulled pork and chicken.

The two-day event will feature an exciting array of artists, promising an unforgettable experience for music lovers of all genres, including: the Michael Miller Band, Bryan James, Whiskey Heart, Jamey King, Madden Metcalf, Fallen Timber, Clay Booker and King Cotton with Tony Young,

No tickets are needed, as the live music event is free to attend

However, a $12 ticket is needed to participate in the "People's Choice" pulled pork BBQ judging contest. There will only be a limited number available, which can be purchased online (www.smokininthepinesbbq.com) or at the gate until sold out.

Festival-goers will have the opportunity to sample a variety of delicious BBQ offerings, along with other culinary delights from local food vendors, including sweet, spicy and tangy BBQ.

There will also be cooking competitions, a Kid's Que Grillmaster competition, a marketplace with local crafts and vendors, and plenty of opportunities to meet and mingle with fellow BBQ enthusiasts.

"We're thrilled to bring the community together for this celebration of great food, music, VW Bugs and lots of fun," said Dawn Perez, coordinator of the Smokin in the Pines BBQ Festival. "This event is all about enjoying amazing barbecue, supporting local businesses and creating lasting memories with family and friends."

In addition to finger and face painting, there will be a "bubble station" for the kids, who can also compete in a "Kidz Que" cooking contest (hamburgers and chicken).

Among the items offered by vendors will be: jewelry, wood crafts, customized items, Scentsy, baked goods, handmade dresses, leather and cowhide items, pet items and grooming services, plush toys, BBQ sauces, hot sauces, dry rubs, crochet items, novelty kids toys, freeze dried snacks, metal yard art, handmade soaps and lotions, ceramics, candles and more.

Still time to enter Kids' Que

Openings remain for the 2024 Kid's Que Contest at the Smokin' in the Pines BBQ Festival.

Those interested in entering their child are asked to call the Perry-Taylor County Chamber of Commerce at (850) 584-5366 by Friday afternoon. Space is limited.

The contest will begin at 3 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 23. The entry fee is $15. The age categories are 6-11 (hamburger) and 12-15 (chicken). Cash prizes will be awarded.

Contestants are are asked to bring their own utensils and seasonings. Grills and meat will be provided.

Sample competitive-level BBQ and then vote for your favorite in the "People's Choice."

You are the judge in the People's Choice

You can help judge the "People's Choice" pulled pork contest beginning at 12:30 p.m. on Saturday.

Sample competitive-level BBQ and then vote for your favorite.

But, you better buy one of the $12 tickets early because they are limited and sell out fast!

Kid's Fun Zone

The Smokin' in the Pines BBQ Festival's Kid's Fun Zone will be open Saturday, Sept. 21, beggining at 11 a.m. and will feature outdoor games, bounce houses, bubble station, face painting, finger painting and more.

Admission is free, and the community to come out to Forest Capital Park.

King Cotton returns to the stage Saturday

It will be high cotton in Perry this weekend -- King Cotton will be making its comeback on Saturday, Sept. 21, at the annual Smokin' in the Pines BBQ Festival.

It's been 11 years since lead singer Tony Young, upright bassist Todd Bevis, and drummer Tom Corbett played music together in King Cotton – a band they helped form in 1996.

All three graduated from Lincoln High School, have been friends for decades and share a passion for music and the North Florida outdoors.

The group will have a new guitarist this go around in Stuart Ledbetter, a fellow red hills native whom Young and Corbett recently played with in another project.

King Cotton will be headlining Saturday's festivities and will take the stage at 8 p.m.

"After years of our longtime fans and friends asking for it, we've officially put the band back together," Young said.

"The North Florida music community has always been incredibly supportive of our version of the blues, so we are excited to bring it back.

"We'll be doing all original songs off our three previous albums, and we are especially grateful to have Stuart join our group, who serves up some remarkable guitar playing," Young said.

Bryan James and the Barstool Prophets

Originally from Killeen, Texas, Bryan James is a songwriter with a passion for the older style of country music played by legends like Waylon Jennings, Willie Nelson and Hank Williams Jr.

His last two albums, "Politics or Religion" and "Between the Devil and the Angel," both debuted at number 8 on the iTunes charts.

He has opened for legends like David Allan Coe multiple times, playing festivals with some of the biggest names in country music today, such as Cody Johnson, Alan Jackson, Easton Corbin, Shooter Jennings, Marty Stuart, Tyler Childers, Robert Earl Keen, Ray Willie Hubbard and more.

Bryan James and the Barstool Prophets will take the stage at the Smokin' in the Pines BBQ Festival on Saturday at 12:30 p.m.

Michael Miller Band

Michael Miller was born in Paducah, Ky., and went to school in Knoxville, Tenn., so country music is in his blood.

The Michael Miller Band was formed by a group of his closest friends that he met when he moved to Florida in 2010.

Since its inception, the band has been performing live shows and country music festivals across the southeast.

Some of those performances include: The Suwannee River Jam, CMA Music Fest, Georgia State Fair, Bainbridge River Town Days, South Shore Music Festival and Country in the Pines, among many others.

The band plays the best country rock music, ranging from old to new and original songs.

They will perform Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

It's best to think of 'Killer's Game' as an homage to the 1980s action film

By MARK VIOLA

I've occasionally said in my reviews that a particular title might not be a good movie, but it's an entertaining one.

That's absolutely the case with the new hyper-violent action flick "Killer's Game," which isn't really a bad movie either, but it's also not very original.

Still, it has plenty of style (albeit not a terribly original style) and manages to make the right story decisions at the right moments to keep the fun vibe going.

One of the first movies I reviewed this year was "The Beekeeper," which I enjoyed, but complained about how the movie felt very disjointed tonally, with a somewhat grounded revenge plot set within a incredibly outlandish world of wacky killers and assassins.

By comparison, "Killer's Game" is all wacky killers and assassins from start to finish -- with just enough of a romantic storyline to give the action some stakes and keep the audience invested in the proceedings.

The story follows Joe Flood (Dave Bautista, "Dune"), an assassin working for his handler (Ben Kingsley, "Iron Man 3"). When he meets ballet dancer Maize (Sofia Boutella, "Atomic Blonde"), he begins thinking about hanging up his guns and settling down.

But, when he gets a terminal medical diagnosis, he decides to end it all instead, hiring one of his biggest rivals, Marianna (Pom Klementieff, "Guardians of the Galaxy Vol. 3"), to see it done. Unfortunately for Joe, when he discovers that the diagnosis was wrong, she has already hired an army of assassins to take him out.

Honestly, with the exception of Joe's relationship with Maize, everything about this movie is full-throttled violent insanity with outrageous characters, elaborate action sequences, terrible one-liners (that are hilarious because they are terrible) and gallons upon gallons of blood.

Honestly, director J.J. Perry ("Day Shift"), who has had a long career as a stuntman and stunt coordinator, manages to deliver everything we still love about cheesy 1980s action films -- including the aforementioned wacky characters and terrible one-liners -- and packages that into a modern action flick.

Bautista is solid in the lead role, playing somewhat of a straight man to all of the more outlandish assassins he will face off against.

Speaking of his antagonists, every single one of them is pedal-to-the-metal insanity every moment they're on screen. There's a quintet of Japanese killers who like to use various blades. There's a femme fatale duo that have some of the corniest lines in the movie. There's two Irish brothers whose thick accents result in them getting some of the funniest subtitles since "Airplane."

Terry Crews ("Brooklyn-Nine-Nine") plays an assassin who styles himself like Shaft and is probably the most normal of the bunch, so of course he's paired with a bumbling sidekick wannabe gangster.

Again, this movie isn't great, and nearly everything about it you've seen before in one fashion or another (and possibly done better), but sometimes a movie can hit just the right vibe and maintain that ride through sheer style and bravado. "Killer's Game" is that movie.

If you're looking for a violent, wild action flick, this might be the answer. Otherwise, I'm not sure it's really worth paying full ticket price, but if you have a theater subscription, it's definitely worth considering. If not, check it out when it hits streaming.

The movie is rated R for strong bloody violence throughout, language, some sexual material, brief drug use and nudity.

Jamey King

Jamey King will perform at the Smokin' in the Pines BBQ Festival on Friday at 6:30 p.m.

Madden Metcalf

Local musician Madden Metcalf will take the stage this weekend on Saturday at 11 a.m.

Fallen Timber

Fallen Timber is a Tallahassee-based band that will be performing two sets on Saturday at Forest Capital Park (10 a.m. and 6:30 p.m.) during the Smokin' in the Pines BBQ Festival.

UPCOMING EVENTS

Sept. 19-21

'Hour of the Wolf'

Local playwright Anthony White's dramatic play, "Hour of the Wolf," will premier this September at the Palaver Tree Theater in Crawfordville.

For the remaining showings on Friday, Sept. 20, at 8 p.m. and Saturday, Sept. 21, at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m., tickets are $15 and can be purchased online at https://www.palavertreetheater.org.

Palaver Tree Theater is located at 59 Shadeville Rd. in Crawfordville.

"Hour of the Wolf" is a suspense thriller/murder mystery set in the world of talk television.

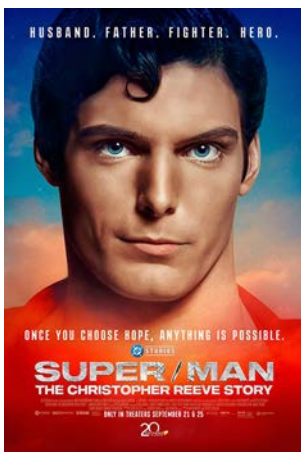

Raymond DeVille is on his way to becoming a major television star as the host of "The Raymond DeVille Show," a nationally-syndicated talk show broadcast live.

Simon Morrison has spent the past 30 years of his life in prison for a triple-murder he committed. For 30 years, he's kept silent about that night, but upon his release, Simon agrees to an exclusive interview with DeVille live on his talk show. What could go wrong?

WHAT TO WATCH IN THEATERS OR STREAM AT HOME

By MARK VIOLA

"Beetlejuice Beetlejuice" held onto the top spot at the domestic box office last week, earning $51.6 million in its second weekend. That's good enough to be the seventh-highest weekend total in the month of September ever.

The legacy sequel has now earned $188 million domestically, while adding a decent $76.3 million overseas for a worldwide total of $264 million. With a reported budget of around $100 million, the film is officially in the profitable category after just 10 days.

In second place last weekend was "Speak No Evil," which earned $11.5 million, which is not bad considering its relatively low $15 million budget.

"Deadpool & Wolverine" earned another $5.2 million in its eighth weekend, while the documentary "Am I Racist?" picked up $4.7 million in its debut despite very little marketing.

Meanwhile, "The Killer's Game" was dead on arrival with just $2.6 million during its opening weekend, settling for sixth place behind "Reagan" with $2.9 million.

In Theaters

"Never Let Go" is a horror thriller starring Halle Berry ("X-Men") about a family that has been haunted by an evil spirit for years. However, their safety and their surroundings come into question when one of the children questions if the evil is real. The movie is directed by Alexandre Aja ("Crawl," "The Hills Have Eyes").

The film is rated R for strong violent content and grisly images.

"Transformers One" is an animated film telling the origin story of Optimus Prime (Chris Hemsworth, "Thor") and Megatron (Brian Tyree Henry, "Bullet Train"), better known as sworn enemies, but who once were friends and even like brothers. Together, they changed the fate of Cybertron forever. The voice cast also includes Scarlett Johansson ("Black Widow"), Keegan-Michael Key ("Wonka"), Jon Hamm ("Mad Men"), Laurence Fishburne ("The Matrix") and Steve Buscemi ("Armageddon").

The movie is rated PG for sci-fi violence and animated action throughout and language.

Moving on to the weekend's smaller releases, we have two other options to consider.

"The Substance" is a body horror film starring Demi Moore ("Ghost"), Margaret Qualley ("Drive-Away Dolls") and Dennis Quaid ("Reagan") about a fading celebrity who decides to use a black-market drug -- a cell-replicating substance that temporarily creates a younger, better version of herself.

The film is rated R for strong bloody violent content, gore, graphic nudity and language.

"Super/Man: The Christopher Reeve Story" is a documentary showcasing Reeve's rise to becoming a film star, followed by a near-fatal horse-riding accident in 1995 that left him paralyzed from the neck down, after which he became an activist for spinal cord injury treatments and disability rights.

The documentary is rated PG-13 for some strong language and thematic elements.

Netflix

"His Three Daughters" is a tense and funny portrait of family dynamics following three estranged sisters (Elizabeth Olsen, "WandaVision," Carrie Coon, "Ghostbusters: Frozen Empire," and Natasha Lyonne, "Russian Doll") as they converge in a New York apartment to care for their ailing father and try to mend their own broken relationships with one another. Written and directed by Azazel Jacobs ("French Exit," "Lover"), this one has been generating a good bit of early Oscar buzz.

The movie is rated R for language and drug use.
